Homelessness Prevention & Intervention

Emergency Weather Plan 2017

This Emergency Weather Plan provides a coordinated response for times when extreme cold or other weather related circumstances create additional, immediate need for expanded capacity to assist people experiencing homelessness in Lexington. Extreme temperatures often force people to seek shelter who may not otherwise seek assistance. In some cases, people struggling with mental illness may not seek shelter and require additional intervention for their own safety. This plan ensures Lexington is prepared for these situations.

The Emergency Weather Plan will be activated when measures of extreme temperatures are reached or when other severe weather conditions take place. Extreme temperature will be defined as:

- Any day when the temperature low is expected to fall below 32 degrees, or
- Any day when the temperature high is expected to exceed 95 degrees.

The wind chill and heat index will be taken into account in the determining temperature. Decisions about severe weather that takes place on days outside of extreme temperature situations will be made by the Office of Homelessness Prevention and Intervention in consultation with the appropriate authorities.

Any time the plan has been activated, the Office of Homelessness will notify local media, provide updates on social media, and notify all organizations that work with people experiencing homelessness.

It's important to note that, unless otherwise stated, these ~~shelter~~ and services are always available to people in Lexington who experience homelessness. The Emergency Weather Plan activates some changes such as transportation or extended hours but Lexington is fortunate to have a strong network of shelters and service providers that is able to meet most needs even during weather emergencies. See the table at the end of this document for a full comparison of services available.

Transportation

For some people experiencing homelessness, transportation to a shelter or between shelters is a significant barrier. Cost, access, or even knowledge of transportation options could prevent them from accessing shelter and getting out of dangerous weather. The following transportation options are available when the OHPI Emergency Weather Plan has been activated:

HopeMobile– The HopeMobile is a program of the Hope Center and when weather creates significant risk for those on the streets their HopeMobile hits the streets to visit known locations and camps where people experiencing homelessness can be found. Those located are offered transportation to emergency shelter and, if they refuse, are provided with blankets and other weather appropriate materials.

Compassionate Caravan – Operated entirely by volunteers associated with the Catholic Action Center, the Compassionate Caravan consists of volunteer drivers visiting places people are known to frequent when experiencing homelessness. Caravan volunteers offer people a ride to the most appropriate shelter of their choice. If the individual refuses the ride then volunteers provide blankets and other weather appropriate materials.

Lextran – Any time the OHPI Emergency Weather Plan is activated then people in need of a ride to a homeless shelter may board Lextran buses at no charge. However, riders must state the shelter to which they need transportation, must ride along existing routes, must transfer to a route with shelter access, and must disembark at the stop nearest that shelter. Drivers may ask riders to disembark if they are clearly not riding to shelter.
